BIO

Andrés Rodríguez-Pose is a Professor of Economic Geography at the London School of Economics, where he was Head of the Department of Geography and Environment between 2006 and 2009. He is a past-President of the Regional Science Association International (RSAI) (2015-2017). He served as Vice-President of the RSAI in 2014 and was also Vice-President (2012-2013) and Secretary (2001-2005) of the European Regional Science Association.

He has a long track record of research in regional growth and inequality, fiscal and political decentralization, institutions, regional innovation, migration, and development policies and strategies. His research is widely cited in academic circles and has also been frequently used by policy- and decision-makers. In his areas of expertise, he has regularly acted as advisor to several Directorates of the European Commission, the European Investment Bank, the World Bank, the Cities Alliance, the OECD, the International Labour Organization, the Food and Agriculture Organization, the Inter-American Development Bank, and the Development Bank of Latin America, among others. He directed a major World Bank/Cities Alliance report entitled Understanding your Local Economy and frequently acts as consultant to governments. He is a part-time Professor of Innovation at the University of Stavanger (Norway) and has also been visiting professor at a number of higher education institutions, including the College of Europe (Belgium), Cambridge (UK), Hanover (Germany), and the Autonomous University of Madrid (Spain). He was awarded the 2018 ERSA Prize in Regional Science, arguably the highest prize in regional science, and has been a holder of a European Research Council (ERC) Advanced Grant and of a prestigious Royal Society-Wolfson Research Merit Award. Other past academic prizes include a Leverhulme Trust Major Research Fellowship, a Philip Leverhulme Prize, and a Royal Geographical Society Gill Memorial Award. The latter two were awarded for his contribution to the understanding of regional disparities and development. In 2019 he received Doctorates Honoris Causa from Utrecht University in the Netherlands and Jönköping University in Sweden.

Among his books, we could highlight The dynamics of Regional Growth in Europe (Oxford, Oxford University Press, 1998), The European Union: Economy, Society, and Polity (Oxford, Oxford University Press, 2002), Local and Regional Development (London, Routledge, 2006 and 2017 2nd edition), Innovation and regional growth in the European Union (Berlin and New York, Springer, 2011), or Technology and Industrial Parks in Emerging Countries (Heidelberg and New York, Springer, 2014). Some of his books have been translated into Chinese, Italian, and Spanish. He has also published more than 180 papers in peer-reviewed journals, is an editor of Economic Geography, and sits on the editorial board (or equivalent) of 33 other scholarly journals, including many of the leading international journals in economic geography, human geography, regional science, and management. Between 1999 and 2016 he was an editor of Environment and Planning C, acting as joint chief-editor from 2008 onwards.

OTHER IMPACT

In a study of authors and institutions in regional science (Rickman, D. S. and Winters, J. V. (2016), Ranking Authors and Institutions by Publications in Regional Science Journals: 2010–2014. Growth and Change, 47: 312–336.), I was ranked the 3rd top regional scientist in the world in terms of core regional science publications.

Despite being a mainstream geographer, I am also highly ranked in a number of field rankings for economists. According to RePEc, at the end of March 2018, I was 78th in the world ranking of economists, when only the last 10 years of publications are taken into account (top ranked geographer on the list). I was also the 56th economist in the UK and was among the top-30 economists in the world in the fields of Economic Geography (8th), Small Business Management (14th), Microeconomic European Issues (14th), Urban & Real Estate Economics (21st), Knowledge Management & Knowledge Economy (27th), and Economics of Strategic Management (33rd).
